

Six Lawyers Engaged In Sewer Fight

Next Monday morning the hearing on the $70,000 Mokena sanitary sewer project comes up again before Judge Henry F. Ruel of Kane County in the Will County court in Joliet. There will be a big array of legal talent on hand, as 6 attorneys are interested in the case. The objectors sides have four attorneys representing the following parties: Snapp & Heise for Rock Island railroad; Attorney Wellnitz, for the St. Mary Parish; Attorney Edward R. Nadelhoffer for the Mokena objectors. Schluntz & Rehn will represent the Mokena Local Board of Improvements.

From all indications this is going to be a very hard fought case. The objectors are determined to knock out the proposed sewer system, while on the other hand the Local Board of Improvements is just as determined to put it over.

New Village Board Urged For Mokena

Many of the good citizens of Mokena feel that this village needs a new village board and needs it badly. They will be given an opportunity to vote in three new village trustees and a president of the village board of trustees at the village election on April 21, 1931.

The Mokena Taxpayers Protective Association group has put a ticket in the field consisting of the following: for president of the village board, John C. Nielsen; for 3 village trustees George Koeller, W. Semmler and Milton Krapp. These candidates will make efficient public servants who will in the matter of public improvements give cost and necessity, due consideration before taking any action. They are against the idea of loading up the community with burdensome special assessments. These men are all well qualified for public office.

Mr. Nielsen is no stranger to the Mokena citizens in the field of politics. He served the village as village trustee back in 1912. He made an excellent record. He was largely instrumental in getting electric light and power for Mokena from the Public Service Company by his work on the village board. He also advocated and worked to have the local water system placed on a paying basis by having the water meter system installed and by assisting in securing the Rock Island railroad as a water customer for the village, this being done by the company erecting a railroad water tank in Mokena and buying the water for their engines from the Mokena water department which has brought in much revenue to Mokena. Mr. Nielsen is progressive and also efficient in every way and deserves the best of support of every right thinking taxpayer and voter in Mokena. He should be elected with an overwhelming majority.

The candidates for village trustees are all progressive business men. Wm. Semmler, one of these candidates, has had considerable political experience. He served as village clerk from 1912 to 1924 also as town clerk of Frankfort township for eight years.

He has always been for the best interests of the community and was instrumental in getting a paved highway thru Mokena. He promoted the paving of Wolf Road in Cook County thru his activities in The News-Bulletin. Within the past 2 years he managed to have the paving of Wolf Road extended thru Mokena by organizing a local road committee who succeeded in interesting Senator R. J. Barr in this project and who used his good offices in having the Wolf Road paved thru Mokena on the Will County Bond Issue.

Mr. Semmler always stands ready to advocate and work for any measures that will benefit others. He is just as aggressively opposed to any men or measures that he deems are not for the best interests of the community.

The other village trustee candidates, George Koeller and Milton Krapp, are of outstanding character, efficient and conservative, and are experienced business men and they together with the other above named candidates are all against forcing assessments on property owners over the protest of a majority; their business experience and training qualify them for the offices they seek.

The special assessment racket is getting unbearable in many Cook County towns and is being made a campaign issue in Harvey where many people are most heavily burdened with heavy special assessments. This should be an example for Mokena. Defeat every candidate who seeks office on a special assessment platform. They must not be returned to office if you do not want more petty politics, more taxes and more special assessments. Save your homes. Do not let the special assessment crowd get a foothold.

New Lenox To Have Hot Caucus Saturday

The town caucus to be held in New Lenox this Saturday afternoon to nominate town officers for the annual town election in April, promises to be a warm one, the chief interest centering in the office of supervisor for which Fred Francis and Harlow Gougar are candidates.

Orland Electric Appointed Dealer For Kelvinator

Word was received this week by Roy A. Loebe, manager of the Orland Electric Shop, that his firm has been chosen as registered dealers for Kelvinator electrical refrigerators. This franchise was awarded after many weeks of negotiation and covers not only the new Yukon line but also commercial and apartment installations for the towns of Orland and Palos. The Electric shop has received its first display box and invites all those interested in learning more about electrical refrigeration to stop in and see the display offered. Mr. Loebe assures no so-called "high pressure" sales talk.

It is estimated that there are 2,500,000 electrical refrigerators in the United States at the present time. About a million and a half of these were installed during the past two years. It is estimated that over a million will be sold during the present year.

Orland Passes New Zoning Ordinance

A public hearing on the Orland Park Zoning Ordinance was held in the Orland public school auditorium last Saturday evening.

The entire zoning commission and about fifty citizens were present. Harold Kinney opened the meeting with an explanation of the purpose of the meeting. Mr. Kay and Mr. Melchor then explained the purpose, etc., of the ordinance.

After this questions were asked by those present and answered by the commission. After this was disposed of complaints were received. There were about one dozen complaints on various subjects also in the form of a resolution signed by several people who objected to any zoning ordinance.

There seemed to be an erroneous idea among some of those present that the meeting was for the purpose of holding a referendum, which of course was not a fact as the village board ONLY has the authority to vote on ordinances for the village.

The meeting was adjourned to meet again Monday night Feb. 23, at which time the complaints were acted upon. A certain change was made in the district map.

The final draft of the ordinance was later presented to the village board who unanimously passed the zoning ordinance.

At the regular meeting of the village board of Orland Park held Monday night, the main topic of the evening was the zoning ordinance which has been carefully studied for several months by the zoning commission and the village trustees. Much time was spent in the preparation of the zoning ordinance and district map.

Many of the citizens were present at the meeting and stated their likes and dislikes about the measure. The objections made at the public hearing held at the school auditorium last Saturday evening were read.

After reading and hearing all objections and making a few changes in the zoning districts, the Board gave its final decision, then voted on it and the measure was unanimously passed.

President Ralph Jennings, the village trustees and property owners wish to thank the chairman, Harry Melchor and his committee consisting of Harold Kinney, Archie Kay and George Gee, Jr., for the time spent in preparing the zoning ordinance and map. Before the ordinance was passed President Jennings fully explained the meaning of the ordinance.

Frankfort Crossing Closed By Railroad

Frankfort is in the limelight at present in a hard road tangle with the Michigan Central railroad. According to A. H. Krusemark village attorney for Frankfort, the Will County Right of Way Committee failed to get a right of way dedication from the railroad for the new concrete road running from the Lincoln highway south thru the village to route 51. The new pavement crosses the Michigan Central tracks a short distance east of the Michigan Central depot in Frankfort. The old crossing is directly opposite the depot. Last week the Michigan Central officials declared that the new crossing must be closed as the railroad had never dedicated the property for road purposes and the section men tore up the planks and closed the crossing. Now in order to get into Frankfort on the new pavement traffic must detour to the old crossing go south a few hundred feet and then turn back eastward on the pavement. In addition to this the railroad is asking the village to dead end the Front street of the village in front of the old Walsh place across from the depot. As the Michigan Central owns the land to the south of the depot they have full control of the situation now.

Just what action will be taken by the village or county officials regarding the closing of the crossing in question, has not been disclosed.

Tinley Park Boy Scout News

The regular meeting of the Boy Scouts was held Saturday, Feb. 14, at the American Legion Community hall from 7 to 8 o'clock.

We were glad to have Rev. Mr. Fleming of the Tinley Park M. E. church who was the speaker for the evening. Any boy 12 years or older who desires to become a scout is urged to get in touch with the Scoutmaster, Mr. Snodgrass or the vice-commander of the Tinley Park Post of the American Legion, Paul Griswold.

The regular meeting of the Boy Scout Troop No. 1 was held Saturday February 21 at the American Legion Community hall. Mr. Nylander of the Legion Post was the guest of the evening. All boys 12 years or older are invited to our next meeting Saturday Feb. 28 at 7 o'clock either to visit or join.

Rose Chapter Garden Club News

Mrs. E. F. Towle, President

Rose Chapter Garden Club members of the Elmore subdivision, at Tinley Park entertained their husbands at a Valentine party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kleven on Saturday evening, February 14.

Bunco was played and prizes won by the following members: 1st prize Mrs. Barnardine; second, Mrs. West and third by Mrs. Edw. F. Towle. The first gentleman's prize was won by Mr. Kleven; second by Mr. Edw. Towle and third by Mr. Jensen.

The lunch served consisted of chicken salad, salted crackers, hot parker rolls, pickles, olives, heart shaped strawberry tarts with whipped cream, angel food cake and coffee. Needless to say it was certainly appreciated by all.

A special lunch was prepared for Mr. Stoltenberg who has lately returned from the hospital and must diet, but he violated the rules a little to eat Mrs. Schultz's angel food cake. We don't blame you Les, for it sure was some cake, but stick to your diet. We appreciate having your company.

Our program chairman, Mrs. Martin Schultz had a game ready for us to make as many words out of letters in the words "Saint Valentine" as the guests could in an allotted time. Prizes were awarded to the following:

First, Mrs. Kleven, 36 words; second, Mrs. Towle 32 words; third Mr. Towle 3 words.

This will end our social events until after the Lent season is over when Rose Chapter will give a dance in Saenger Hall.

Will County Farmers' Supply Co. Declares Big Dividend

The Will County Farmer's Supply Company held their annual meeting last week at Joliet and the yearly reports showed that the company had a very successful year and the annual report showed sales increase of 28 per cent for 1930 as compared to 1929. The comparative figures were $172,000 against $134,000. In addition to paying $15,554.37 in refunds to Will county customers the past year, the company also paid 7 per cent interest on a capital stock of $14,050.00.

Starting with one bulk plant and three trucks in 1928, the company has grown to the point where three plants and 10 trucks are now in use and 2,000 customers are served in Will, Cook and DuPage counties.

The report referred to was made by Alfred Sutton, manager of the company.

A resolution was drawn up by Ben D. Jones of Manhattan and on motion made by Basil Bennett and seconded by Frank Lally it was adopted and reads as follows:

"Whereas, at the last annual meeting of the Will county farm bureau, it was decided to make the sow thistle a major project, and whereas the sow thistle is a real menace to agriculture in Will county, therefore be it resolved, that it is the sense of the annual meeting of the Will County Farmers' Supply Company that the board of directors be authorized to co-operate with the Will County farm bureau insofar as it may be legal, to assist in the eradication of the sow thistle in Will County."

Wm. Webb of Plainfield and Royal Dixon of Channahon, and Ralph Mather of DuPage were elected directors.

Alpine Man Reports Big Snow In East

C. F. Colcord, well known horse dealer of Alpine, has just returned from Dudley Center, Mass., where he sold a carload of horses at auction, February 9th. Mr. Colcord reports - heavy snow there, 40 inches deep in many places. The weather was around the zero mark.

Mr. Colcord says that business conditions in the east are far from being bad. The section of the country he was in seemed to have quite a good supply of money. The banks there show extra good savings accounts and bank failures are seldom heard of in that section.

Will Receive Donations For Mission Work

Mokena people have been deeply interested in the great work that Supt. Pete McCarthy is doing at the Morning Star Mission in Joliet in helping the poor and needy. That Mr. McCarthy should be given material support is the opinion of the people interested in his work. One of Mokena's leading business men, Milton Krapp of the Mokena Hardware Company, states that he will gladly receive clothes, food, etc., at his store for the Morning Star Mission and deliver such things to the Mission. If you wish to aid this important work for helping those less fortunate than yourself, leave your donations at the Mokena Hardware Company Store and they will be taken care of.

Every one is cordially invited to attend this meeting and especially the mothers of the junior garden club are requested to be present.

Steffen Home, Orland Destroyed by Fire

The Philip Steffen, Jr., residence caught fire at three o'clock Thursday morning. The fire was discovered by the oldest daughter, who fought her way thru a blinding smoke and saved an infant sister. Other members of the family barely escaped with their lives by leaping from the second floor. Very little furniture and household goods was saved. The building containing a barbershop and soft drink parlor beside the living quarters was badly gutted by the flames. The Orland Fire Department fought for three hours to get the fire under control.

John Liess, Former Mokena Official, Dies

John Liess, aged 85 years and a resident of Mokena for sixty years, died last Saturday morning at 4:50 o'clock at the home of his daughter Mrs. Harvey Reab in Mokena, following a short illness. Mr. Liess had been in poor health for some time, but was always able to be up.

Mr. Liess was very active in civic affairs and held office for many years. He was born in the historic city of Worms, Germany, January 7, 1846. In 1866 he came to America. He was living in Chicago when the great Chicago fire broke out in 1871 and lost all his belongings with the exception of his purse.

On April 5, 1872 he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Marti of Mokena. They located in Mokena and resided here up to the time of their deaths.

To this union eight children were born of whom one son, Jacob, died a number of years ago.

Mr. Liess took a keen interest in Mokena village affairs shortly after the village was incorporated in 1880 and served as village clerk for a number of years and assisted in drafting many of the village ordinances and was clerk of the board when the first village water system was built. His name, together with the names of the other members of the village board at that time appears on an iron tablet at the foot of the water tower.

Mr. Liess also served the village as village treasurer from 1912 until last fall when he resigned this position. He also served as town clerk of Frankfort Township for 18 years.

Mr. Liess was well posted in law and was a notary public for many years. His advice was sought by many of the old time residents and he drew up many wills, deeds and other legal documents.

He also entered the insurance business and was said to have been the oldest agent in Will County.

For a number of years he was also interested in western lands and was agent for the Knapp Land Co., of Joliet, and sold much farm land in the vicinity of Warren and Fairmont, Minn.

He always enjoyed good health up until a few years ago. The death of his wife five years ago was a great blow to him from which he never recovered.

Mr. Liess was always a friendly and helpful man and made many friends. His home life was ideal.

Surviving him are three sons, Frank of Montana, John and Charles of Joliet; four daughters, Mrs. Jennie Cooper, Mrs. Rose Reab of Mokena and Mrs. Freida Voss of Monee; Mrs. Mary Leonhardt of Joliet; fifteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Reab home, Rev. G. G. Bratzel of St. John's Evangelical church officiating. Burial was in the St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson, Secretary Illinois Press Association.

Repeal of the game code, a closed season for two years and the ownership of all game declared to be vested in the owner of the land upon which it is found, is the solution of the game shortage in Illinois, according to a statement recently issued by Senator Charles W. Baker, of Monroe Center, chairman of the senate fish and game committee. "The farmers who have prohibited shooting have done more to save a remnant of our wild life than all our laws," he said. "The prairie chicken, quail and partridge of former days are almost extinct. These and other varieties of game will soon be found only in museums unless we take immediate and drastic action. The voters failed to approve a plan to establish sanctuaries and public recreation grounds in every county in the state at the last election, so stopping of shooting apparently remains as the last opportunity to protect our fast-disappearing birds and animals of forest and field."

The United Mine Workers of America, headed by John L. Lewis, was declared the only valid international mine union by Judge Harry Edwards of Dixon, in a verbal decision given in the Circuit court February 13. Judge Edwards, however, stated he would make permanent the injunction against Lewis restraining him from revoking the charter of District 12, or removing the officers of the district.

The University of Illinois has placed a microphone in one of its classrooms and is regularly broadcasting a series of history lectures.

D. W. Ribison, superintendent of animal industry, estimates that it will be necessary to test more than 500,000 cattle this year if the present standards and accredited territory are to be maintained.

Counties cannot use public monies to purchase life insurance on paupers, according to an opinion of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

The Supreme court has refused to reopen the Chicago Tribune's $2,000,000 case against Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago.

A bill aimed to curb cattle thieves, who have been operating in Illinois recently, has been introduced by the legislature by Representative D. Logan Giffin, of Springfield. It provides that buyers of stock at all stock yards in the state be required to keep records on the purchase, transportation and sale of live stock. It would require that records be kept showing weight, license and engine number of the vehicle, if shipped by truck, car number if by rail, special markings on the stock and any other data which would enable a bona fide owner to prove his property in case of theft.

Creation of a Lincoln memorial by the purchase of the courthouse in Springfield, which was the first state capitol erected in the city, was advocated by Carl Sandburg in an address in the historic building February 11. Lincoln made his famous "House Divided" address in the courtroom and was intimately associated with the building, and it together with New Salem should be restored to pre-Civil war appearance and conditions, he advocated.

Thirty-three hundred acres of land in Union county are being used by the state of Illinois as the nucleus of a reforestation plan now under way, according to Lewis B. Springer, superintendent of the division of forestry. A nursery has been established there and also on 200 acres near Oquawka where young trees are propagated for distribution to state institutions and state parks.

Representative Frank Holten, of East St. Louis, has introduced a bill in the legislature repealing the portion of the motor vehicle law relating to filing bonds or policies by taxi operators and amending the act so as to require every applicant for motor vehicle license to pay the secretary of state the sum of $10 to create a fund to pay judgments for property damage and personal injuries received in automobile accidents. It sets a maximum of $1,000 for property damage and $5,000 for a single person or $10,000 for more than one injured or killed in any accident.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature by Representative M. V. Rush of Metropolis, amending the present school law to make the minimum length of a school term seven months instead of eight as at present.

Representative John M. Peppers of Aurora has introduced a measure making an appropriation for the installation of fire sprinkler systems in state institutions not now fireproof, where wards of the state are housed or confined.

By a vote of 91 to 56 on February 10, the house of representatives passed the O'Grady bill repealing the state prohibition law and the search and seizure act, otherwise known as the anti-prohibition measure. It is now being considered in the senate.

Gov. Wilbur N. Brucker, of Michigan, Gov. William H. Murray, of Oklahoma, and Katsujir Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to this country, were the speakers at the Mid-Day Luncheon club's program at the arsenal February 11. Governor Brucker read for the first time a letter from Grace Bedell, eleven-year-old Westfield, N. Y. girl, to Mr. Lincoln asking him to grow a beard to improve his looks and saying, "All the ladies like whiskers and they would tease their husbands to vote for you and then you would be President." The letter is owned by G. A. Dondero, of Royal Oak, Mich., who received it from Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln. The little girl is now Mrs. Grace Bedell Billings, of Delphos, Kan., and she was the guest of the Lincoln day celebration in Springfield last year.

Representative David Hunter, Jr., of Rockford has introduced two bills in the legislature to give the state highway department authority to build, pave and maintain belt line highways, to build and maintain state highways in cities, and also giving their authority to arrange with cities for wider streets and paving where necessary, the cities to pay for the extra width or difference in cost of construction.

Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, representative from Winnetka, has introduced a bill in the general assembly amending sections of the city library act in several respects. The bill provides that when the question of organizing a public library is submitted to a referendum or the question of levying a library tax, the voters may also vote for six directors and that the tax may be increased to 1.2 mills or may be determined by election.

George M. LeCrone, veteran newspaper publisher and former state legislator, died in a St. Louis hospital February 10. He was former editor of the Effingham Daily Record and a member of the house in the thirty-ninth general assembly. His widow and three sons survive: Byron LeCrone, editor of the Effingham Daily Record; G. M. LeCrone, Jr., publisher of the Colorado Springs Farm News, and Humphrey LeCrone, editor of the Olney (Ill.) Times.

A resolution has been passed by both houses of the national government at Washington, providing for the appointment of an additional judge for the southern federal judicial district of Illinois. It has been sent to the President for his action. This district has a population of 1,500,000 people and Judge Louis FitzHenry is the only judge. Under this measure another judge will be appointed. The bill was introduced by Congressman Frank Ramey of Hillsboro.

T. A. Simpson, county superintendent of schools of Lake county for 25 years, has been appointed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair to the position of state supervisor of rural education, succeeding the late U. J. Hoffman.

Congressman William E. Hull, in a telegram to H. O. Allison, secretary of the Illinois Farmers' Institute, is advocating a higher tariff on farm products in order to build up agriculture. He states that if blackstrap molasses, which nearly all comes from Cuba, was taxed with an eight cent duty, that it would cause manufacturers of industrial alcohol to use 40,000,000 bushels of corn per year; by placing a duty of seven cents on butyl acetate, used in duco paint, one factory increased its consumption from eight to sixteen million bushels of corn; a duty on tapioca used for starch would make a market for 16,000,000 more bushels; and the department ruling taking the ban off corn sugar will eventually cause 35,000,000 bushels more to be used. He further advocates a high tariff on soy bean meal, mill feeds, beet pulp and peanut meal, all of which are shipped into this country in large quantities and take the place of corn.

Representative James J. McVicker of Chicago has introduced two bills in the general assembly relating to hotels and boarding houses. One provides that apartment hotel, family hotel, owners and operators of any apartment shall have lien upon the baggage, effects and personal property of their guests, lodgers or boarders, and right to detain same until charges and costs are paid. Another provision is that a building or structure in which ten or more sleeping rooms are used and maintained for guests shall be defined as a hotel. The other bill provides that any person obtaining service, food or lodging at apartment hotel, family hotel, rooming house, boarding house or apartment house consisting of rooms or suites of rooms rented furnished for sleeping or living purposes, with intent to defraud the owner, keeper or operator shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor.

Justice Warren H. Orr of the Supreme court addressed the members of the law class admitted to the bar in this state by the Supreme court on Lincoln's birthday. Justice Orr in paying tribute to Lincoln said: "No man ever started with less and ended with more." He admonished the young lawyers that they "should always exhaust the possibilities of peaceful settlement before resorting to the courts. Above all you should be scrupulously honest with all monies belonging to clients and entrusted to your care."

COLOR CONTRAST AND FABRIC COMBINATION STYLE IN HATS

IN CREATING hats for immediate midseason wear and those which will initiate the spring millinery program, designers are inclined to combine one material with another. That is to say, rather than all straw or all satin—for the smartest models the two are worked together, or if the hat is felt, more than likely the felt will be in two or more colors which accent striking contrast.

This trend to combine and to contrast is confirmed by the hats which but with print silks, many of which adopt these tones.

So keen is this flair for color contrast the vogue has carried into tri-color combinations, as, for instance, navy, gray and white or brown, orange and pistachio green.

The Evening Mode.

A feeling for contrast seems to have taken possession of style creators everywhere. Not only are colors contrasted, but the movement extends to media as well, materials of entirely make up the group illustrated. Please to observe that each of these chic models set far back on the head revealing all of the forehead and part of the hair. This new pose is characteristic of the majority of hats whether they be with or without brims.

The top model might correctly be described as a beret of novelty black straw which is worn far back on the head, a certain or pleated frill of the supple lace braid falling over the nape of the neck in baby-bonnet fashion. The drape across the front is black satin.

Rows of stitching radiate from the peak of the crown of the modish draped beret shown at the top to the left. It is also of satin, for the satin hat just now is proving a leader for midseason wear. Turquoise velvet rib-different character being frequently used together.

One of the most pleasing gestures of the mode, so far as using contrast materials together is the alliance of lace with velvet. More and more the world of fashion is recognizing how adorably lace and velvet play in duet. Perhaps they stage their greatest triumph in the formal evening picture, for certain the evening frock of filmy lace never appears to better advantage than when touched with the magic of a bit of velvet.

When velvet meets lace as it does in case of the charming black dinner gown shown to the left in the picture then does the one glorify the other. The bodice has an interesting diagonal cut and the slight décolletage, with its diamond-shaped contour at the front and repeated across the back is extremely flattering.

The gown with a bodice top of sheer velvet has registered for the summer evenings as well as for immediate wear. Seeing that transparent velvet is as dainty and thin and delightful to wear as chiffon or any other diaphanous weave, it has been unanimously elected as a year-round fabric. Very smart black frocks with velvet prin-

Eggshell Spanish lace over lustrous satin is the theme of the exquisite evening gown to the right. The train starts in light beige velvet from the V-back and turns to lace a third of the way down.

OLDER PEOPLE Must watch bowels Constantly!

As we grow older the bowels become more sluggish. They don't get rid of all the waste. Some days they do not move at all. So older people need to watch their bowels constantly. Only by doing this can they hope to avoid the many forms of sickness caused by constipation.

When your bowels need help remember a doctor should know what is best for them, and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your drugstore. Syrup Pepsin is a doctor's prescription for lagging bowels, good for all ages.

No restriction of habits or diet is necessary while taking Syrup Pepsin. Made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other valuable ingredients, it is absolutely safe. It will not gripe, sicken or weaken you.

Take a spoonful next time your tongue is coated, or you have a bad taste in your mouth. It clears up a bilious, headachy, dull, weak, gassy condition every time. When you see how good it tastes and how nice it acts, you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the world's most popular laxative for every member of the family.

Avoid Burns from Mustard Plasters

When you have Rheumatic or Muscular Pains in the back, chest or limbs or if you have a cold coming on, try this simple treatment. It is more convenient, safer, cleaner and more effective than mustard plaster.

Get a bottle of Hoff's Liniment and apply it with brisk rubbing. Then saturate a cloth with Hoff's and apply to the painful area and in a few minutes you will feel the warming and stimulating effect of this powerful liniment.

Hoff's is different from ordinary liniments that are applied with rubbing alone. It brings a quick flow of blood to the affected area, reducing congestion and relieving pain. Get an eight ounce bottle of your druggist today for 60 cents. If you do not get relief in 30 minutes he is authorized to refund your money. Goodrich-Gamble Company, St. Paul, Minnesota.

FORD COMFORT

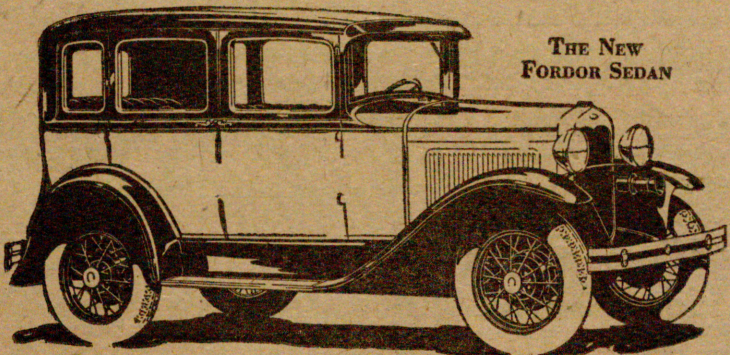

Every new Ford is equipped with four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without strain or fatigue. No matter how long the trip, you know it will bring you safely, quickly, comfortably to the journey's end.

The seats are generously wide, deeply cushioned and carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body. Every new Ford has specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. These work both ways — up and down. They absorb the force of road shocks and also provide a cushion against the rebound of the springs.

Other features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of fine steel forgings, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, Rustless Steel and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

In addition, you save many dollars because of the low first cost of the new Ford, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

Yes, Sir, I can back up what I say about Germ-Processed Oil with actual proof, O.K'd by A.A.A.

THREE stock cars from three price classes went through six weeks of testing on Pike's Peak. Three nationally known oils were used in comparison with Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil. All of the testing was directly supervised by the American Automobile Association.

At the end of six weeks the AAA took the more than ten thousand observations, then issued a report of the outcome. The report stated that in the Pike's Peak Tests Conoco Motor Oil had shown a reduction of 76.4% in the rate of motor wear... that it had shown greater stability... had lowered frictional temperatures... increased compression pressures... reduced oil consumption... added to gasoline mileage... reduced crankcase dilution... lengthened motor life.

No higher authority could have been called upon to prove the merits of Germ-Processed oil. No more sweeping commendation could have been asked for. The complete story of the Pike's Peak tests is told in an attractive booklet. We'll gladly send you a copy upon your request mailed to "Conoco, Ponca City, Oklahoma"... or you can obtain it at stations showing the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle when you go there to change to Germ-Processed oil, as thousands of other motorists are doing every day.

L. R. Burdett Heads Ticket of Conservatives

L. R. Burdett was the unanimous choice for village president of the Conservative Party caucus held at the Woman's club Friday evening. F. M. Penn, J. S. Knight and H. G. Nicholson were chosen to run for trustees and Fred Robinson for police magistrate.

A letter was read from Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club, Inc., announcing the decision of that group to aid the Conservative party. A motion to incorporate the party carried unanimously.

H. G. Nicholson, president, announced the plan of procedure—all candidates names would be submitted by the executive committee or by nomination from the floor, by ballot the names of the two highest candidates for president, the six highest for trustees and the two highest for police magistrate would be selected; then another ballot would determine the single highest candidate for president, for police magistrate and the three highest for trustees. As each candidate's name was called, he was asked to pledge his support to the party, win or lose.

After several were nominated for president, all declined except L. R. Burdett and Ed. Carrier; the latter declined in favor of Burdett. As the engineer was declared the unanimous choice of the party, a big hand was given him.

The first ballot for candidates for trustee showed the following: Frank Penn, 50; H. M. Nicholson, 29; Harry Thebow, 19; H. M. Watkins, 13; Frank Carey, 19; J. S. Knight, 36; Fred Baker, declined; Homer Sykes, 23; E. M. McCalley, 11; A. E. Smith, not present; Burt Johnson, declined; I. S. Schwartz, declined; E. J. Dillon, declined; J. E. Pacatte, declined; Ed. Carrier 12. The second ballot resulted as follows: F. M. Penn, 56; H. G. Nicholson, 37; H. Thebow, 17; Frank Carey, 25; J. S. Knight, 43; Homer Sykes, 29.

The first ballot for police magistrate was as follows: Fred Robinson 44; V. DeP. McCourt, declined; Theo. Jenkins, 10; Bert Small, not present; F. Lee Anderson, 8; Ed. Kaplan, 3; Wolford Scott, 6. The final was: F. J. Robinson, 53; Theo. Jenkins, 16.

While the votes were being counted, Alex Stevenson sang, accompanied by Mrs. Homer Sykes, and Judge Stodd of Markham gave several recitations. Mr. McCalley composed a new party song, to the tune of "The Sidewalks of New York".

The writer of an unsigned letter, recently sent "Boxholders" was severely condemned by the chairman, the executive committee chairman and from the floor. A repudiation was considered unnecessary as the author was unknown, and as it did not originate with the club.

The secretary was instructed to send a letter to the MESSENGER, which read as follows:

"Editor, THE MESSENGER: "In regard to the letter mailed to 'Boxholders' last week denouncing certain candidate of the Peoples' Party, the Conservative Party wishes to state through the press that any literature originating in the Conservative party will be signed by the officers of that party."

Mrs. F. J. Robinson, Sec'y.

March 3rd at 10 a. m. will be our next Welfare Conference to be held at the McIntosh office at 145th and Central Park ave., Once more I wish to say that veterans who would like to have milk for their children may secure it by attending the welfare, as it is only to those coming to the Conference that I am to issue requests for milk.

We find there are many cases of Measles in Tinley Park and would advise parents with children who have not yet had measles to be on the lookout for "sniffles", and watery eyes. If these symptoms are in evidence, keep the child isolated until he 'breaks out' and thus save spreading the disease.

With the coming spring and good weather we hope a larger number of children and especially the babies will attend Welfare. It is interesting to note that the children now in kindergarten who have for the past few years been attending Welfare show a much better physical condition than those who did not attend.

150 Attend Debate at Auditorium

One of the finest things that has been held in Midlothian for some time was the debate between the two North Central College Debate teams at the school auditorium Sunday evening.

Six young men very ably presented both sides of this great question. The question as the team debated it was:

"Resolved, That the several states shall enact unemployment insurance to which employer must contribute".

Those representing each side and the order in which they spoke:

Affirmative: 1. Joe Lenz, Illinois; 2. Herdis Deabler, Michigan; 3. John Shafer, Illinois.

Negative: 1. Melvin Salton, Minnesota; 2. Donald Kring, Michigan; 3. Charles Kramer, Indiana.

Rejoinder: John Shafer, Melvin Salton.

RESERVATIONS

1. Constitutionality waived. 2. Seasonal industries are excluded. 3. Industries of less than ten employees shall be excluded.

The men who took part in the debate were entertained by a committee of the Epworth League at a reception at the M. E. church following the debate. Refreshments were served by Miss Mae Byfield, Florence, Alice and Violet Bloomquist, Francis Holmes and Leona Buchbinder.

Mr. Slick acted as chairman of the meeting and carried out his part of the program very successfully. The audience acted as the judge awarding the decision to the affirmative. The affirmative advocated an assessment against industry according to its average unemployment. The negative attempted to prove that many industries would have to be excluded, that only about one-sixth of the workers would be affected and urged greater stabilization of industry.

P. T. A. ELECTION

Don't forget the P. T. A. meeting March 9, election of officers. Very important.

Meade Writes on Assessment Proceedings

TO THE ELECTORS OF MIDLOTHIAN:

The "Conservative" (what a misnomer.) Party in charge of Village affairs started on its rampage of special assessments in January, 1928. Before the end of July of that year they had filed in the County Court of Cook County six different petitions for successive special assessments aggregating $1,253,874! This is a matter of public record, my fellow citizens. You can check the figures as I have done in the office of the Clerk of the County Court of Cook County.

We did not fight all of these attempts. Some of the assessments were for sidewalks which the property owners desired and presumably were willing to pay for at an exorbitant price. We did, however, prevent them from taking from the taxpayers of Midlothian the tidy sum of $924,320 for a pretended sewer which had no outlet and no prospect of securing an outlet.

Attempted assessment No. 3 was for water mains in the Robertson Subdivision. The residents in that section were almost unanimous in their opposition to this. The case was fought out in the County Court before a jury. The jury came out to Midlothian and personally inspected conditions. Their verdict was that the assessment of $80,666 was grossly excessive and they reduced it by about 33 1-3 per cent. Thereupon the "Conservative" board dismissed that proceeding and immediately, over the protests of the property owners and taxpayers, filed another assessment for the same "improvement", amounting this time to $85,542. This later figure is not included in my total of $1,253,874, for the reason that it was intended to replace the figure of $80,666 which is included. Objections were filed to this second proceeding and the matter was pending in the County Court until the present Board took over the administration of the Village and voluntarily dismissed the proceedings.

On October 19, 1928 the "Conservative" board passed an ordinance to purchase the McIntosh water system. They were attempting to proceed under a law which provides for a referendum, and 135 electors of the Village promptly filed a petition asking that the question be submitted to a vote. This was done, and the harassed property owners voted not to buy the water system that had already been bought and paid for by the purchasers of lots in the McIntosh subdivisions. Then what happened? The engineers fostered upon the Village by the "Conservatives" explained a scheme whereby the expressed will of the people might be defeated. A special assessment ordinance was passed purporting to provide for the installation of a water system in the McIntosh subdivision. Arthur A. Huebsch, who was then the Village Attorney, would not be a party to it, so the matter was turned over to other attorneys. The assessment was filed in court and was levied against the entire village. The village engineers certified that the work had been properly done in accordance with the ordinance, and they charged a substantial fee "for inspection during construction", although the work was all done before Midlothian was a village and before the engineers had ever seen the place.

The present Village Attorney filed a petition in the County Court setting up all the facts and the court promptly vacated the assessment and held that the power given by the State to a village to MAKE an improvement and pay for it by special assessment does not confer upon the village the power to purchase and misuse the special assessment law for that purpose.

These are a few of the services rendered you by the Peoples Party and the Goodfellowship Club. You will be reminded of others before this campaign ends.

For a safe and sane administration, get acquainted with Peoples Party Candidates.

Court Decision Gives Robbins B. I. Water

Judge Thomas Taylor of the Circuit Court Saturday rendered a decision in favor of a petition by the village of Robbins to procure city water from Blue Island. W. Otto Wielgorecki represented Robbins and Roy Massena was the attorney for Blue Island.

Started in October of 1929, the laying of water mains in Robbins was completed last fall. At first it was planned to hook on to the Posen mains, but later it was decided to demand water from Blue Island. The demand was contested by Blue Island.

The law is fairly specific in that communities in the sanitary district getting water from Lake Michigan, must provide sufficient water for adjacent communities when such is demanded.

According to Samuel E. Nichols, president of Robbins, the village expects to get water in about two weeks. In case of fire, he says, the value of the system will be appreciated.

Evergreen Park Policeman Arrested by Debring

Fred Gorman, assistant chief-of-police of Evergreen Park, was arrested by Constable Charles Debring of Oak Forest on Saturday. The complaint was signed by Hilda Koehn; the charge was attempted rape. The officer was held on $5000 bond.

The hearing was before Judge Henitz of Blue Island at 10 a. m. Tuesday; it was continued to 2 p. m. next Monday at the Posen village hall.

Although the officer was suspended, he was reinstated after a hearing by the police committee.

Rally Month at St. Lukes

We hope that all who are members of St. Luke's Union church or who are interested in it will read the following details of the plan.

For the month of March a sustained effort to bring the church into contact with all who might be interested will be maintained. Visiting teams of women and of men will comb the community in an endeavor to call on many homes.

Please show your interest by attending church for at least this month of March.

We are sponsoring a social program to which all are invited. The first event will be March 8 from 4 to 6 p. m. The church will entertain with a tea sponsored by the Drama club. Readings, songs, and a one-act play will compose the program.

You are invited to participate and your assistance is needed.

Children between 6 and 10 years of age are invited to join the Busy Bee class at St. Lukes Sunday school at 10:15 a. m., on Sunday morning by Peggy Fortt, teacher.

MARKHAM PERSONALS

Mrs. James Tesar spent Monday in Chicago. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hasek of Hammond were their guests.

MIDLOTHIAN ITEMS

Every body attending the Netopew Camp Fire Girls Washington's Birthday party had a very enjoyable time. Games were played, prizes awarded and refreshments served.

Fred Robinson was brought home from work with pleurisy Monday.

Conservative Auxiliary Gives Successful Bunco

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Conservative Party gave a very successful card and bunco party at the Woman's Club House Saturday evening. This group of women will be giving similar affairs from time to time, so watch The Messenger for further announcements.

SPECIAL GOSPEL SERVICES

The gospel story of God's love to the world was preached by John Wesley, C. H. Spurgeon and D. L. Moody will be told out at 7:30 P. M. Sunday, March first in the Woman's Club House, 148th St. and Prairie Ave., Midlothian. This service will be preceded by a children's meeting at 6:30 P. M. at which a number of young men will tell how God saved them.

of motion pictures of the Illinois Federation of Woman's clubs, will be one of the speakers.

Mrs. Eleanor Clarke will have her poster exhibit from the 6th, 7th and 8th grades of the Midlothian school on the same day. The public is invited.

Election Hours Set from 7 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.

One of Midlothian's time-honored arguments was settled by the board Tuesday, when the election hours were fixed by ordinance as from 7 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. Attorney Harper gave the opinion that those hours were legal which gave the people an opportunity to vote.

A contract with the MESSENGER was drawn up, specifying the changes to be made in the Blue Island building ordinance. It should be in the printer's hands this week.

Chief Sagadin's request for printed inspection forms and for hose adapters was approved.

Chief Terry announces that March 15 will be the deadline for village vehicle licenses. Unlicensed dogs are also disappearing.

Lutheran Zeal to Spread Gospel

By Rev. E. T. Blau

Concordia Lutheran Church is not a proselyting body. It has no intentions of weaning away from their churches those whose denominational loyalties are fixed. But we are convinced that the Lutheran church has a message particularly to the large number of unchurched in this community. Our Synod spends millions of dollars annually in supporting home mission enterprises. For almost half a year the Lutheran Laymen's League of the Missouri Synod has financed a weekly coast to coast broadcast of Lutheran teachings.

Lutheranism is frankly conservative. It accepts the Bible as God's inspired Word and stresses as the dominant note in its message the Gospel truth that pardon for sin, salvation and life are the free gifts of God's mercy, offered to men in Christ and received by faith in the divine promises. It believes this Gospel to be "the power of God unto salvation", and relies upon its simple presentation to convert the hearts of men. Its preaching is neither sensational nor shallow, but aims to give the hearers spiritual refreshment and instruction in the difficult art of applying the ethics of Christ to every-day living.

POSEN PERSONALS

Among the members of the Posen fire department attending the supper and dance given by the Harvey Firemen's Association, at Piazza's hall, Monday evening, were John Christie, Roman Matuszonek, and John Czachura Jr.

The bunco party given by Mrs. Mary Banichi at Zaremska's Sunday was a success. About 120 played from 7:30 to 10:30 in the evening and over fifty went home with major prizes.

John Christie and his family attended the funeral of Pat Hallinan in Blue Island, Sunday.

By an error in last week's issue the name of Victor Suk, Citizen's Party candidate for president of the board, was spelled Sult.

Posen goes to the polls next Tuesday with only one office in contest. The Greater Posen Party has two candidates for nomination for the office of president of the board: Victor Kaminski and Boleslaus Dryja. Mr. Kaminski is the present mayor and is said to have the organizations support. Mr. Dryja was formerly village police chief.

There are no contested places or the Citizens Party ticket.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gohl and Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt of Chicago spent Washington's birthday with the Ed. Reimer family.

St. Stanislaus school has inaugurated a safety patrol composed of six boys from the 7th and 8th grades, captained by J. Sawicki. Three boys work every other week, two are stationed at 144th and Western, which has been the scene of two fatal accidents in the past year; the third is at the corner of 144th and McKinley. The captain, J. Sawicki is on duty every week.

The 7th grade boys are: S. Samajedny, G. Cerekwicki, A. Czachura. The 8th grade is represented by S. Mikrut, J. Smaron and L. Kosak.

A FEW WORDS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE COLLECTOR

Very few people realize that when defaulting their payments on Special Assessments, the inconvenience they are bringing on themselves. They not only save additional interest by paying their local collector but they also save for themselves a lot of trouble, tired feelings, patience, etc. A great many pieces of property were forfeited to the State during 1930 due to the failure of non-payment of either Special Assessment or General Tax Bill.

If you are in doubt about your Special Assessment, why not get in touch with your Local Collector and ascertain whether or not your delinquent Special Assessment has been forfeited.

A little precaution now will prevent a lot of trouble in the future. You know an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The cure now is to look up your Local Collector and find out from him the status of your Special Assessments. The prevention is to pay your bills before delinquency, if possible.

Your local collector, Mr. C. A. Zuchelkowski, is always ready and willing to assist those owning property in Midlothian against whose property there is a special Assessment. Don't wait—do it now.

One Bremen Twp. Man Gets Work from Commission

Last week the MESSENGER published a letter from the Governor's Commission, to the editor, stating that no discrimination was shown those outside Chicago. This week we learn that one man from the township has received work from the Commission at Oak Forest for four days at Oak Forest, but he is said to have received it by registering from a Chicago address. That was a month ago; this month most of the bunch that worked with him are back at work, but he was not given any.

It was mentioned in the letter that most of the relief in Chicago was given out through the United Charities, the Catholic Charities, the Jewish Charities and the Salvation Army. The only one of these functioning in Bremen Township is the Catholic Charities which has given out $300 in the past month to 62 families here.

Although the Commission last week sent appeals for aid throughout the township, so far as we can learn the "Outdoor Relief" group, recently appointed to "aid" the supervisor and relieve the Health Nurses has done nothing out gather facts and figures—which to date have not been very digestible.

From the township supervisor we learn that it is now planned to appoint the supervisors as "temporary agents" of the Bureau, with the strong possibility that they may be relieved or all chance to distribute aid. This will mean that the local supervisor, available most of the 24 hours of the day and familiar with local people and their condition will have nothing to say; relief will be given out by strangers who may be found some 6 hours out of the day, 5 days a week. A Chicago concern is to be favored with the county orders and it is reported that the oatmeal obtained from them is old and musty.

One group came out to "assist" Robbins, suggesting that the county supply gravel for the streets, the village board supply the money, and take a chance on collecting. It is hoped the gravel will arrive before Thanksgiving.

The supervisor also says that county orders no longer provide for ambulance service in taking the sick to the county hospital. The township has no funds for the purpose, so it appears the ill must walk to the hospital.

Capacity Crowd Hears Drama Club

The third group of plays was presented last week Thursday and Friday. A capacity crowd greeted each performance.

Sickness removed three members of one cast. The vacant roles were assumed at the last minute by courageous young women who turned in a highly creditable performance.

All night sessions of the stage committee headed by Bill Bihlmeyer resulted in a stage which enables the audience to both see and remain seated.

The next playnight of the club will be the latter part of March. Definite announcement will be forthcoming in another week.

The casts for the two plays presented last week are:

THE telephone instrument is only a small part of the great system which enables you to talk far and near with such surprising ease. Behind the telephone many miles of wire, intricate switching machinery, and a trained organization of men and women combine to handle calls quickly and make the service so useful and valuable.

All their efforts are directed toward carrying out a fundamental policy—to give the most telephone service and the best at the least cost to the public.

NEW YORK'S DIALS

Forty-seven of New York City's telephone exchanges are now of the dial type, the last such exchange, Bogardus, having been placed in service on November 16. It serves the area between Third and Sixth avenues and 23rd and 33rd streets. At present there are nearly 600,000 dial telephones in New York City.

NEW YORK'S PUBLIC TELEPHONES

The public telephones in the Manhattan district of New York City serve annually 6,000,000 patrons. Service from many of these stations has been greatly improved this year through the installation at the Grand Central depot, the Pennsylvania and the Long Island terminals of forty-eight direct trunks to long distance and the toll and tandem boards, by means of which faster service is now being given to long distance and suburban points.

The Mud of Midlothian

The Mud of Midlothian at its muddiest is in Ben Schroeder's barber shop with Frank Carey getting a shine. Last Saturday a cold chisel was used in making a foundation for the shoe polish.

The following was clipped from the Heraminer. No comment is needed; it speaks for itself.

The next meeting, Monday January 19, will be ladies' night, and is expected to be the usual success. President Bob Bowen told the Lions that in the event of any Lion being unable to be present his wife would be privileged to bring a gentleman.

That incessant cry for more mud and yet more mud comes from Jim Burke of McIntosh's.

For explanation, see classified want ads.

And among the ads on last week's back page where Chief Terry's ad used to be we see the scarehead "Nobody Loves a Policeman."

Evidently a hint that the revenue from the Chief's ad is missed.

And looking over the same back page we see evidence that the wide open spaces pictured in K. K. Cumming's views of Midlothian, has done something to some one. . . . There's an ad that reads—"Farm Printing is a Specialty With Us."

An evening could be spent figuring the number of farms that might be located in The Manus Subdivision.

And speaking of Manus' reminds us of one of its isolated pioneers, Ed. Loving who came home one evening to find a pack of cigarettes neatly dismembered and the remains in two heaps, cigarette paper in one, tobacco in the other. Mr. Loving, turning to his youngest said, "What did you do to those cigarettes?" And the boy promptly answered, "I peeled them."

And continuing on Manus's. To see Zuchelowski's Pipe Dream gone one better, look at the really remarkable view of Shedd's Pond on the end of a Midlothian Special cigar box.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson took advantage of excursion rates to St. Louis and spent the week end with relatives there.

A good time was had by all who attended the box social and dance given Saturday night by the Arbor Park P. T. A.

The elementary department of the M. E. Sunday school held a Washington Party Saturday afternoon in the church basement.

Loretta Terry and Edmond O'Donnell visited the Wm. Snedden family on Saturday. Little Elsie Mae Snedden spent the week end in Chicago with her aunt and uncle.

Margaret Williams celebrated her ninth birthday Saturday.

The four teachers of the Arbor Park School are arranging a program of music and readings to be given Tuesday evening, March 3rd.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Roelle entertained friends and relatives from Milwaukee, Wisconsin over the week end.

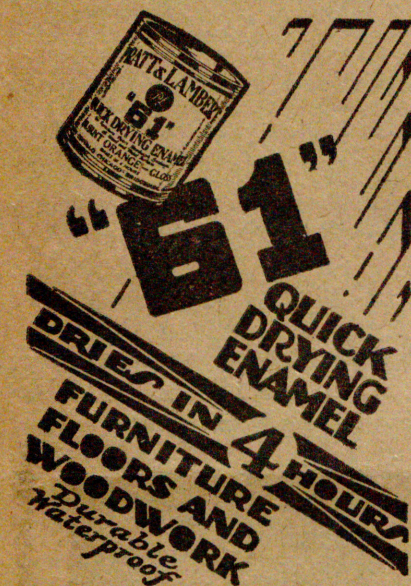

The M. A. Hall family held a reunion at their home Sunday but instead of killing the fatted calf, they killed their fatted pig and what a feast was had! Henry Buer, the baker, roasted the pig to a turn. The guests included Mrs. P. Hall, Elsie Hall, Mr. and Mrs. S. Wheeler and son, Lorraine Hall, Mr. and Mrs. P. Michelsen, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hallach and son, Arthur E. Hall and son and daughter, all of Chicago, also Mr. and Mrs. A. Mack and two daughters of Winnetka.

THE STORY

With his English wife, Catherine, and son, Jeems, Henry Bulain, French settler in Canada in 1749, cultivates a farm adjacent to the Tontour seigneurie. As the story opens the Bulains are returning from a visit to the Tontours.

He had stood this hurt and still kept Marie Antoinette in his thoughts, for there was no other child to help fill her place. But since last autumn, when Madame Tontour's sister and her son Paul had come to the seigneurie, his dreams had grown more clouded until, on this Thursday afternoon, they were replaced by grim and merciless visions of a future vengeance on the young man who laughed at him and humiliated him, and who, without any grace whatever that he could see, basked warmly in the smiles and graciousness of Marie Antoinette's favor.

He was glad when his mother and father paused to rest on the edge of a great rock near the trail, for this interval gave him opportunity to go on alone, and when he was alone he could tear and thrash Tontour's cousin in a much more admirable way than when the others were tramping close at his heels. Suddenly Odd stopped so that his gaunt body made a barrier against Jeems' knees. They stood at the edge of a flower-strewn open among the chestnut trees. It was a hundred yards across this sun-filled playground of the wild, and on the far side of it, concealed in the bushes, Jeems knew there was game of some kind.

He dropped to the earth and drew himself behind the decaying mass of a monster log that had fallen a hundred years before. Odd crouched at his side with his muzzle level with the top of the log. Thus a minute passed, and after that another, and more on top of them, yet Odd gave no sign of discouragement, nor did Jeems. He watched the far side of the clearing on a line as straight as a die with the pointing of Odd's nose.

Another minute of this rustling stillness, and a magnificent turkey cock strutted majestically out into the sun. He weighed twenty pounds if an ounce, thought Jeems, a proud and immaculate bird, defying all the world in the empty open. In this moment Jeems thought again of Paul Tache, for the Quebec boy was like this turkey cock, always flaunting his clothes and disporting himself with the importance of a man.

Slowly Jeems withdrew the long-barreled gun from the top of the log and tautened the string of his bow. He waited until the big bird stood less than eighty yards away. An inch at a time he rose higher on his knees, and Odd's body grew stiffer with his movement. A choking sound came from the dog's throat as the long bow was bent. The twang of the string was like the ring of a steel tuning fork, and across the open sped a grayish flash. There followed a mellow sound, a great commotion, a leaping of gorgeous color high into the air. Paul Tache, the turkey cock, was down and dying.

A moment later, Jeems and Odd stood looking down on the turkey cock, and gladness leapt once more into the boy's face and eyes—for here was not only a splendid dinner for tomorrow, but also, in his imagination, the first blow struck against his enemy.

The wild hot pride of youth and achievement possessed the lad as his father and mother came toward him. Here was triumph, and the boy's eyes lighted up when he saw his mother's interest in what he had done, and the unfeigned amazement in his father's face as he dropped his milled corn to the ground and looked down upon the magnificent turkey cock with the feathered arrow transfixing it.

Catherine regarded her boy unobserved by the two whose hunting instinct drew their eyes to the fallen game. Her own eyes were shining, and after a moment Henri saw what she was seeing and thinking and placed one of his big hands tenderly on his son's slim shoulder. Yes, Jeems was like his mother except for his blond hair and gray eyes, and in these two things he resembled his mother's brother, that worthless, wandering, always fighting and forever lovable vagabond, Hepsibah Adams. Henri's heart was happier at his wife's proud contemplation of her son, and he burst forth in praise of the lad's exploit.

"What a shot!" he cried, bending low to examine the bird and the arrow. "Straight through from wing to wing as clean as a bullet—and right up to the shaft of the feathers! I'd swear you did not have that strength in your arm, lad! Yet the arrow was sused from back there at the edge of the open, you say? I scarce believe it! It is a shot for Captain Pipe and White Eagle and Big Cat, and not for you!"

These three were the Caughnawaga Indian friends who had taught Jeems to shoot, and it was Captain Pipe who had made him his bow of choice seasoned ash.

They went on as the sun was setting behind the wilderness, and the golden pools of light grew dimmer about them and shadows grew heavier and more velvety dark among the trees. Through the woods, though the trail was narrow, Catherine walked with her hand in Henri's, and for half an hour they spoke no word except in whispers, and at last the four saw their home.

It lay in a sheltered dip which was like a diminutive child of the larger valley, a low and cheerful cabin of peeled logs, with more windows in it than a cautious man would have had, and with a huge chimney of clay and stone at the end. It was a home of beauty and comfort and luxury, as those things were measured on the frontier, and the best that Henri Bulain could build. Catherine's love for this home was next to her love for Henri and her boy. Close about the cabin was her own domain—her flower gardens, her shrubs, her bird houses built of chestnut bark, her box hedges among the thinned-out trees, with pretty paths edged with white-washed stones winding in and out among them.

Running up to the borders of these gardens were Henri's work fields, beginning first, because of Catherine's artistic eye, with the gentler growths of husbandry—carefully groomed and plotted soil for herbs and vegetables; and beyond lay the broader fields for heavier grains and foods, ten acres of well-tilled land in all, ending up against the hard maple wood out of which, in the preceding month of April, Henri had taken his year's supply of fifty gallons of maple syrup and four times as many pounds of sugar.

These precious possessions the four saw as they came down the green slope, and not one-half of them would Catherine have exchanged for all of Madame Tontour's riches.

Catherine was smiling at her husband, and in Henri's eyes was an answering light of happiness, when out of the peace and beauty which lay about their home rose a piercing and blood-curdling cry—a cry which seemed to stop every sound that was in the air, a cry of monstrous depth and vastness, and with that cry a wild figure came toward them from its hiding place in the green shrubbery of Catherine's garden.

With a lurch of his shoulder, Henri sent the bag of corn to the ground, while ahead of him Jeems swung his long gun into the crook of his arm and Odd stiffened and let out a sullen growl. The scraggy and mysterious figure advanced up the slope, and Jeems had looked to his flint and priming and stood with a ready thumb on the hammer of his weapon when from behind her husband and her boy Catherine gave first a startled gasp, then a little scream, and sped past her protectors to meet the advancing stranger with open arms.

"It's Hepsibah!" she cried. "It's Hepsibah!"

CHAPTER II

The stirring words had scarcely fallen from his mother's lips when Jeems laid his gun on the ground and ran after her, but with all his haste she was in her brother's arms before he could overtake her, while his father, carrying the turkey cock but without the corn, came hurriedly out of his amazement and down to meet them.

If ever a man bore an affinity to an oak, with its cheer and strength and rugged growth, that man was Hepsibah Adams, the Indian trader. He was not as tall as Henri by half a head, nor did he have his leanness. His shoulders were wide and his body thick, and his face was as round as an apple and almost as red, with marks and scars of stress and battle set upon it, but in such a way that its vivacity and the good humor of its twinkling eyes were enhanced rather than spoiled by the vicissitudes of fortune.

When the excitement of first greetings were over, Catherine stood back from her jolly rogue of a brother and viewed him with a pair of eyes bright with affection, but which glowed at the same time with an appraising and speculative questioning which her lips at once put into words.

"Hepsibah, I am so happy to see you that it makes my heart choke, and yet I promise to stop fighting, for one of your ears is nicked and your nose is crooked and there is a mark over your eye which was not there when I say you two years ago!"

Hepsibah's weather-stained face broke into a smile.

"I can't say as much for your nose, Catherine, for it grows prettier each year," he said. "But if a Dutchman's ham should happen to come against it, as one bit mine in a little joust in Albany town, why, I'll say there would be a bend in it, or no nose at all. And as for the ear with a nick in it, what can you expect from a Frenchman—excepting your sweet-tempered husband here—when he gets a chance to use his teeth instead of the hands which God gave him to fight with?"

The slit in the face is only a crease left by an Onedra's knife when he misled himself with the thought that I had got the best of a bargain, which I never do get, or I'm a sinner! But is that all? Do you keep no better account of me than that? I am a bit ashamed of you, Catherine, for you have missed the important thing!"

"What is that?"

"My stomach," declared Hepsibah, holding his ample paunch with both knotted hands. "It is sunk and shrunken, as you may clearly observe. It is dwarfed, shortened, circumscribed, and reduced—fairly warped and strangled from lack of food! And if I do not eat very soon—"

The rest was smothered in Catherine's arms and laughter.

"Dear old Hepsy!—Hungry—always hungry, and you never will be any other way. So we shall have supper almost as soon as smoke can be made to come out of the chimney. I am so happy you have come!"

"And I," added Henri, getting in a word at last.

Jeems was tugging at the hand of his roving vagabond of an uncle, who was his greatest hero in all the world, and dragged him back to get his gun.

As they went, the happiness in Catherine's face was clouded for an instant.

"Best keep good eyes on our Jeems for a time, Henri," she warned. "Hepsibah, you know very well, is a singularly imprudent and thoughtless man, overfilled with foolish tricks and contrivances most alluring to boyish minds, and of which, because of Jeems, I am a bit afraid."

But Henri only chuckled, for the thought was in his mind that it was a fattening of one's good fortune to be taught tricks by a man like Hepsibah Adams.

Then Catherine saw that a film of smoke was rising from the top of the big stone chimney.

"Hepsibah has already started a fire," she said.

It was the aliveness of this fireplace which had drawn the expression of surprise and pleasure from Catherine—that and the aroma of cooking things which greeted them. Since Catherine's earliest memories, her brother had boasted of his excellence as a cook, and most assuredly he had been busy since his unexpected arrival. Half a dozen chains were dropped from their bolts in the thick oak log-bar of the fireplace seven feet above the fire, and from the portholes at the end of these chains were suspended as many pots and kettles, steaming and boiling and giving forth a cheerful sound of dancing pewter lids against which the bubbling water was playing an animated and pleasing melody. But to Henri, who always loved the sound of these busy pots with their lively cheer and promise of supper, a still more delectable thing was the great roast of venison which Hepsibah had hung before the fire.

Many Good Reasons for Use of Latin Mottoes

A writer has raised the question as to why the mottoes on coat armor and public shields, graduation diplomas, etc., are in Latin and not in English. There is something in the point so far as recent creations are concerned, and if modern private individuals or public bodies want to display some profound truth on a shield there are reasons why it should be done in English; sometimes it is. The reason for so many Latin mottoes goes back to the foundations of civic life in Great Britain. The elegance of the Latin tongue apart, it was up to three centuries ago, an instrument of government, the language, too, of affairs, and the recognized means of communication between the educated classes of Europe. It is not so now, but the vowel beauty of the Latin tongue dies hard. For example, "Ave Numerantor Avorum" has both in sound and sight more of elegance than the English form—"I follow a long line of ancestry." Ancestry is, perhaps, the best of excuses for retaining the Latin. It is something which, although old, is not odd.—London Times.

Lesson for March 1

JESUS SENDING FORTH MISSIONARIES

GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore said he unto them, the harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Helpers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Trying Out His Helpers.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Helpers of Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Missionary Task.

The sending forth of the seventy was for a special time and purpose. The missionary enterprise today has much in common with that of that day, but there are certain essential differences which should be recognized.

1. The Seventy Sent Forth (vv. 1, 2).

1. Appointed by the Lord (v. 1). They went forth not merely because of an inner urge but because of personal and direct appointment. Only those should go forth as missionaries who are appointed by the Lord.

2. Sent two by two (v. 1). The purpose of this was that they might mutually help, counsel, and support each other.

3. The reason for their appointment (v. 2). It was the greatness of the harvest and the fewness of the laborers.

4. The force back of missions (v. 2). The disciples were instructed to pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers. Prayer indited by the Holy Spirit has been back of every missionary enterprise.

11. The Seventy Instructed (vv. 3-10).

1. As to the source of their commission (v. 3). "I send you." Every thing depends upon the authority of the commission. No missionary should go forth without the consciousness of being sent by the Lord.

2. As to the dangers confronting them (v. 3). Missionaries thrust forth by the Lord will be exposed to deadly peril.

3. As to their support (v. 4). Being sent forth by the Lord, they were to look to him to provide for their need.

4. As to the speed of their mission (v. 4). So urgent was the need of the speedy evangelization of the Jewish territory that the distractions of social intercourse were to be omitted.

5. As to behavior in homes where received (vv. 5-9).

a. Offer the peace of the gospel (vv. 5, 6). This is to be done regardless as to whether it will be received or not. There is a reflex blessing in preaching the gospel.

b. Do not shift quarters (vv. 7, 8). Missionaries should remain in the home where they have been received, content with what is given them. They should not demand better food and more comfortable quarters than are commonly provided.

c. Heal the sick (v. 9). These disciples were given power to heal the sick. The ministers of Christ should seek to give relief to those in distress and use every opportunity to proclaim the gospel message.

6. The awful fate of those who reject Christ's message (vv. 10-16). Their case is more hopeless than that of Sodom. Those who reject Christ's messengers reject Christ and reject the Heavenly Father who sent him.

11. The Return of the Seventy (vv. 17-24).

1. Their report (v. 17). They were highly elated. They found that they could not only heal the sick, but cast out demons also. It is easy even in Christian service to be spoiled by our successes.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 18-24). (a) He told them that it was no surprise to him (vv. 18 and 19). With prophetic eye, he saw their success as indicating that time when the prince of this world would be overthrown (John 12:31). By virtue of his mighty triumph over Satan, he assures them that they need have no fear of what should befall them. (b) Real cause for rejoicing (v. 20). He promptly rebuked them, telling them that their chief joy should be because of their heavenly relation, not because of these miraculous gifts. (c) Jesus' exaltation (vv. 21, 22). The consciousness that soon the victory would be won because God had committed all things unto him and that only as men received him could they know the Father caused him to rejoice in what was being accomplished. (d) Congratulates the disciples (vv. 23, 24). He assured them that they were sharing privileges which had been denied to many of the prophets and kings.

By His Presence

When God possesses us we are possessed by his presence, and the Holy Spirit cannot be in us without purifying our thoughts, desires and motives and so equipping us for his service.—W. H. Griffith Thomas.

Boundless Possibilities

Oh, I am staggered as I think of the boundless possibilities that God opens before the man whose whole nature is filled with His Spirit!—Selected.

Stairs About as Good as Mountain Climbing

"Only optimism can succeed in the motion-picture business," declares Cecil De Mille. "The pessimist is foredoomed to failure. In my last picture I had a young extra girl who, I think, will some day become a star. She has an amazingly buoyant outlook on life."

"I was talking to her for a moment between scenes. In one breath she confided that her favorite sport was mountain climbing and in the next that she adored Hollywood."

"But don't you miss the mountain climbing?" I asked. "There are no real mountains within thirty or forty miles of Hollywood."

"But I don't need them here," she replied with a happy smile. "You see, I live on the fifth floor of an apartment that has no elevator, so I get all the climbing I need and the mountains are never missed."

Electric Fences for Jails

All jails in Bengal are to be surrounded by electrified fences or entanglements, according to an order just issued. Prisoners will be warned that such fences would kill or seriously injure anyone coming in contact with them. "Danger" signs will be posted both inside and outside the fences, and these will be in English and in the language of the presidency. Employees of jails will not be responsible for injury or death of anyone coming in contact with the charged wires.

Locked Themselves In

Tom Higgins of Morrill, Maine, lost four sheep. For three days he hunted for them everywhere. At last he looked into an old tumble-down house and in a little pantry he found his four sheep. They had closed the door and kicked a table against it. They were all in good condition after a fast of three days, but were quite willing to get out.

STATUE TO GEN. GREENE WASHINGTON, D.C.

COL. OTHO H. WILLIAMS

G. British advancing; 1. First position of British; B. Front line of Americans—North Carolinians; C. Second line of Americans; A. American right wing; E. Maryland and Virginia Continentals; 2. Second position of British; D. Fight between Hessians and Americans; 3. Third position of British.

northward nearly 250 miles away from his base of supplies at Charleston and at the same time had brought his own troops nearer to Steuben, who was assembling reinforcements in Virginia. It had had been a thrilling race, across the Catayba, across the Yadkin and across the Dan. Both armies were almost worn out by this mid-winter march, but Cornwallis was in much worse condition than Greene.

Cornwallis consoled himself with the remark that he had forced the enemy out of the Carolinas. But it was an empty boast for the enemy wouldn't stay forced out. No sooner had Cornwallis started on his return than Greene recrossed the Dan. By this time he had been joined by the rest of his army under Huger and at Guilford Court House, on ground which he had carefully chosen, he offered battle. The British leader was perfectly willing to accept the challenge, since it offered the possibility of retrieving some of the prestige he had lost in being outmaneuvered by Greene during the famous retreat.

Greene posted his troops in three lines, following the tactics which Morgan had successfully used at Cowpens. The North Carolina militia were in front with parties of expert riflemen on either flank. Three hundred yards behind them was a line of Virginia militia with Col. William Washington's cavalry on their right flank and "Light Horse Harry" Lee's on their left. Five hundred and fifty yards in their rear were posted the Continental troops with General Huger commanding on the right and Col. Otho Williams on the left. The first and third lines were on the edge of clearings, giving a good field of fire, but the second was in the woods.

All told Greene had about 4,000 men, but a large part of these were militia, none too steady under fire and given to sudden panics. Cornwallis had about 2,200 men, British and Hessians, and virtually all of them were well-trained soldiers. Cornwallis attacked about noon. Greene's first line became nervous as the British advanced to the attack, began firing too soon and with practically no effect. Then when the British line charged the line broke and the militia fled in disorder. The second line stood its ground better until the British turned its flank when it retreated past the left of the Continentals.

Cornwallis then pressed on through the woods to the second clearing and fell upon the Continentals. Among these were two veteran Maryland regiments who had been taught the value of discipline. They not only repulsed two British attacks with heavy loss, but also launched a furious counter-attack which broke the British line in the center. One British battalion was driven in confusion from the field, losing nearly half its strength.

The Virginia Continentals up to now had not been heavily engaged and Greene might have thrown them in at this moment, crushed Cornwallis and won the day. But these Continentals were not the veterans that the Maryland troops were and they would have been pitted against some of the best troops in the British army who saw victory almost within their grasp. If the Virginians failed, it might result in the destruction of Greene's whole army. We can never know how sorely tempted the American commander was then to gamble with fate, to stake everything on one last throw and to try the issue to the bitter end. But he must have realized that more than this one victory was at stake there. If he guessed wrong and lost his army, the South was lost and perhaps the whole patriot cause was lost. So he gave the order to retreat and retired from the field in good order.

Cornwallis had won, but he had paid dearly. In defeating Greene at Guilford he lost nearly a third of his own force. As Fox, the British minister remarked when he heard the news of this battle: "A few more victories like that and we are undone."

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

the way to Augusta in Georgia, Greene took Gen. Isaac Huger with him in an advance into the valley of the Pedee to threaten Georgetown and Cornwallis' communications with Charleston.

On the face of it, this was poor strategy but subsequent events proved the wisdom of Greene's decision. The logical thing for Cornwallis to do was to try to defeat the American forces in detail and Greene's division of his forces seemed to offer the opportunity. But the new American commander had the Briton worried from the start, for Cornwallis had no illusions about Greene. "He is as dangerous as Washington," he wrote a friend. If he moved forward against Greene, Morgan would fall upon his rear. If he turned to crush Morgan, Greene would pounce down upon him from behind. He could not leave Camden and its vast stores of supplies unprotected. So it will be seen that Greene had "put him in a hole" at the outset.

Cornwallis' final decision was to follow Greene's example and divide his forces—which was just what Greene hoped he would do. More than that, the American commander began planning "miles and weeks ahead." He sent his chief engineer, Kosciuszko, and his quartermaster, Carrington, to examine the fords of the various rivers of North Carolina and to gather boats, wagons and supplies at strategic points. Then he prepared for a game of hide-and-seek on a large scale, luring Cornwallis on to attack him, but never allowing the Briton to catch him.

Cornwallis' first move was to send one of his best officers, Col. Banastre Tarleton, to attack Morgan. The result was the battle of Cowpens on January 17, 1781, in which Morgan won a complete and brilliant victory. Cornwallis immediately set out to punish Morgan but that leader, although encumbered with prisoners and the large store of supplies captured at Cowpens, retreated so rapidly that within a week he had covered nearly 90 miles and put his army across the Catayba. There on January 30 Greene, accompanied by only three men, joined him, having left Huger in command with orders to follow up the Yadkin and hurried across country to be with Morgan. Greene had now decided to unite his army in North Carolina and Cornwallis had decided to pursue the Americans northward—just what Greene hoped he would do.

Cornwallis spent two days at Ramsour's Mills, burning all his tents, baggage, extra clothing and supplies. He was stripping his army for a rapid advance. When he reached the Catayba he found that stream swollen by rains and for two days he waited for the water to subside. Then he crossed over, scattered the militia which Greene had left there to dispute his crossing and set out after Greene. The next day Greene reached the Yadkin, which was also swollen by rains, but Carrington was there with his boats and the little force of Americans was quickly ferried across. The last boats were leaving for the northern shore when the British advance guard came into view. Having no boats, Cornwallis was forced to seek shallower fords 25 miles up the Yadkin. He then hurried toward the upper fords on the Dan river in the hope of reaching them before Greene could. But again Greene's forethought proved its value. He had boats waiting for him on the lower Dan and he crossed over in these.

Greene's plan had worked perfectly. By keeping just in front of Cornwallis he had enticed him

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THIS month marks the anniversary of the battle of Guilford Court House in North Carolina, fought just 150 years ago—on March 15, 1781. Compared to other engagements in the Revolution this one is but little known to most Americans. The forces engaged were not large; it was not as spectacular as Washington's exploit at Trenton, Wayne's capture of Stony Point or the amazing victory of the backwoodsmen at Kings Mountain; and its highly-important result was not immediately visible. At the moment it was a victory for the British, but in the long run it was an American triumph and in a certain sense it was one of the decisive battles in the struggle for freedom.

But more than anything else the battle of Guilford Court House is a perpetual monument to the memory of a man who measured up to the supreme test of a great military commander—his ability to lose battles and win campaigns. That man was Gen. Nathaniel Greene.

The task which was given him in 1780 was one which would have daunted any commander. Sir Henry Clinton had captured Charleston and General Lincoln's army of 2,000 men. The British had overrun Georgia and South Carolina and with the brilliant Lord Cornwallis in command it seemed as though all of the South had definitely been won back to the crown. Congress had sent General Gates, the credited though little-deserving victor at Saratoga, to take charge of what patriot forces there were available there and, although he could ill afford to spare them, Washington sent a division of Continental troops under Baron de Kalb to help Gates stem the tide of British success. As for Gates, "his Northern laurels turned to Southern willows," and he suffered a disastrous defeat at the battle of Camden, which was all the more tragic because of the loss of De Kalb.

Following his success at Camden, Cornwallis proceeded with the invasion of North Carolina. The defeat of Ferguson at Kings Mountain on October 7, 1780, with its loss of 1,000 of Cornwallis' best men checked him temporarily and he fell back to Wigginsboro. But this lightened for only a moment the gloom which seemed to be settling down over the patriot cause. The outlook was still dark enough when Greene arrived in Charlotte, N. C., early in December. Washington had given him as his second in command Baron Steuben, and he also had Gen. Daniel Morgan, the real hero of Saratoga, John Laurens and "Light Horse Harry" Lee. Upon taking command, Greene immediately won the confidence of Col. William Washington, a brilliant cavalry leader, and the famous partisan leaders, Marion, Pickens and Sumter.

The total force at Greene's disposal was probably never much over 2,000. With his few hundred Continentals and the unreliable militia, whose numbers fluctuated constantly, he knew that he could not risk a pitched battle with Cornwallis. His only hope was to carry on the partisan warfare of the Carolina leaders on a larger scale, so he divided his army for that purpose. Sending Morgan with about 600 men to co-operate with Sumter on Cornwallis' left flank and giving him orders to threaten the British leader's line of communications and the various British posts all

Castoria made especially for CHILDREN

CHILDREN usually hate to take medicine but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And mothers like its action—so gentle, yet so prompt and effective.

Castoria is a never-failing comfort to children and mothers alike because it was formulated expressly for children—to correct their little ills and upsets.

The beauty of it is you can give Castoria to children of all ages with equally sure results. When baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed; and free from pain, he is asleep again in a jiffy.

In an older child when coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, a more liberal dose is usually all that is needed to cleanse and regulate the bowels.

Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your children are grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a child in his teens.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.

4 Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. If you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Legion Notes

ORLAND PARK LEGION NOTES
The meeting Tuesday evening, to which the business men were especially invited, was well attended. The principal speaker of the evening was W. W. O'Connell, District Commander. He gave a very comprehensive survey of the aims and purposes of the American Legion. All of the business men gave their approval of the work of the Legion and signified their intention of co-operating with the endeavors of the Post. Every one seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion and a good time was enjoyed by all. One very interesting feature of the occasion was the receiving into the Post of nine new members. This makes our total membership to date 35 members which was the quota set for us for 1931. As we have reached our quota we are now, in Legion parlance, a 100 per cent Post. We are now going "Over the Top" for more members. Others have already signified their intention of joining us. Watch us grow.

TINLEY PARK

Tinley Garden Club Notes will appear next week. Lack of space has crowded them out this week.

A. O. Foskett, chairman of the Tinley Park Lions Club Minstrel Show Committee advises that The Tinley Park Times erred last week when it was stated that all of the proceeds of the Lions Minstrel Show amounting to $348 would be expended on the public. Mr. Foskett says: "Please let me call to your attention that this is a gross error and should be corrected. The sum of $348 was approximately the total receipts. Of course we had expense as mentioned in my article of last week. Our net profit for the show was just a trifle over one-third of the total receipts. Will you please make correction accordingly in the next issue."

The Tinley Lions have been asked by the Midlothian Lions to put their minstrel show on at Midlothian. The Tinley Lions have the request under favorable consideration and action will probably be taken in the near future.

Owing to lack of space other Tinley items had to be held over to next week.
